BIOGRAPHY

Pagan Ulver is a Symphonic Melodic Black Metal band formed in 2020 in Settat, Morocco. Blending black metal intensity with cinematic orchestration, and sometimes atmospheric black metal melancholy. The band has emerged as one of the most distinctive acts rising from the North African extreme metal underground.

After experimenting with different styles in the black metal territory during their early years, Pagan Ulver forged a sound rooted in dark fantasy inspired by misanthropy, nihilism, and self-destruction. Their debut demo, Chaos Unfolds (2023), introduced the foundation of the band's identity and paved the way for their first full-length album, Obsidian Flame of Thy Offering (2025).

In September 2024, Pagan Ulver became the first black metal band in the history of Tremplin-L'Boulevard Festival to win first prize in the competition's 22-year history, earning both national and international recognition for their powerful and uncompromising performance.

The band was later featured by Metal Hammer, highlighting both their artistic vision and the growing presence of African extreme metal on the international stage, and described it as: “Living proof that the future of metal is in Africa and not in Europe or the United States.”

In 2025, Pagan Ulver shared the stage with Katatonia, further solidifying their reputation as one of the most ambitious modern acts emerging from Morocco while remaining deeply inspired by the spirit of the 90s black metal era.

With the release of Obsidian Flame of Thy Offering, Pagan Ulver continues to push beyond the boundaries of the local scene, while paying homage to the early Norwegian black metal movement that helped shape the band's identity.
